Epidemics

God bless everyone impacted by influenza this year. I wish kindness were as easy to catch as the flu. I have been part of one epidemic this year; I would like to be part of another. The first symptoms would be a sense of calm, spreading through your entire body, followed by a persistent patience. Then a deep empathy would set in, manifesting in sustained compassion and a head full of open-mindedness. This wave of kindness would spread all across this country and beyond. It would be caught by people of every culture and condition and be easily passed on to others. Unlike the flu, once you had it, it would not go away.
